

OLD SOLDIERS TO MEET IN REUNION HERE WEDNESDAY

Veterans of Tenth and Sixteenth Kentucky Regiments Meet at Beechwood Park Wednesday for Annual Reunion.

Tomorrow—Wednesday, September 6th, is the date for the annual reunion of the veterans of the Tenth and Sixteenth Kentucky Regiments Kentucky Civil War veterans.

Arrangements have been made to give the few remaining veterans and the members of their families a big time. Practically all of the work of these reunions is now in the hands of the secretary, Mrs. G. W. Hook, of Peebles, Ohio, who since the death of her father and mother, who for years took a great interest in these reunions has been not only the secretary of the Veterans' Association but the general manager of their annual reunions.

During the past year many of the most active members of the association have passed off this battle field answering the summons of the great Commander-in-Chief. Memorial services in their honor will be conducted by the Rev. J. J. Dickey, of Flemingsburg.

Officers will be chosen for the ensuing year and the veterans will be given a big feed. There will be a musical program and several addresses will be made.

It would be quite fitting for Maysvillians to display the American flag in honor of the survivors of that great army which fought for the preservation of the union.

BEECHWOOD PARK CLOSED SEASON ON LABOR DAY

Beautiful Little Park Has Been Greatly Enjoyed During Season—Announcement Made of Re-Opening.

There was a very large crowd at Beechwood Park Monday evening to bid farewell to Beautiful Beechwood Park for the 1922 season. The evening's program was very delightful. Besides a splendid motion picture, there was a grand display of fireworks and a most enjoyable pavilion dance.

General Manager Edward M. Smith, on behalf of the Park Company, thanked the people of Maysville for their liberal patronage and his announcement that the park would be re-opened next year with many added attractions was met with loud applause. It is likely that May Day will be chosen as the opening date for next year.

The people of Maysville and vicinity have greatly enjoyed Beechwood this season. It has been the city's one recreation grounds and has filled a long felt need here. It will certainly have even greater patronage next season.

SCHWARTZ-BLACK

Miss Katherine Schwartz Becomes the Bride of Mr. J. A. Black, Former Local Tailor, at Indianapolis.

It has just become known in Maysville that Miss Katherine Schwartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Schwartz, of Second street, and Mr. J. A. Black, of Indianapolis, Ind., were quietly married in the Indiana capital on last Friday.

The bride is a most popular and accomplished young lady and was saleslady at Merz Brothers' department store where she had made hundreds of friends throughout this section.

The groom, who for several years was a tailor at D. Hechinger & Co., is following his trade in Indianapolis. He has many warm friends in Maysville. They will make their home in Indianapolis.

The many friends of both the bride and groom join the Ledger in extending heartiest congratulations and good wishes.

SCHOOL BOARD TO RECONSIDER LOCATION.

In response to a petition asking that the location of the new Lewisburg Consolidated school building be reconsidered, the County Board of Education in session here Monday granted a re-consideration and will visit other locations in the Lewisburg neighborhood within a short time to make its final location. There is considerable interest in several locations and the school board has a big job on its hands pleasing the people of that section.

Superintendent Caplinger and the school authorities are very much pleased with the way the year is starting. All the teachers are on their jobs and the first day's enrollment shows a total of 868 or 21 more than last year's first day total of 847.

OUR POLICY:

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section as against another. And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the county as a whole.

THE TWENTIETH AMENDMENT

"The interests of childhood and youth," says a great American writer, "are the vital interests of mankind." Nations renew themselves only because every thirty and three years a new generation arises, so that, as an English philosopher has pointed out, to talk of an old and, therefore, decrepit and decadent civilization is meaningless. A nation may have a long history, but it can never be older than its youth and young manhood and womanhood.

The future of America, and of all mankind, depends upon the culture of the young, upon the improvement, through education, which each succeeding generation makes, and the world marches forward in no other way.

Sir James Barrie, in his address at Oxford, expressed the conviction in his most lucid and eloquent manner, that only a "league of youth" can prevent the relapse of civilization, the recurrence of other wars like the last, or even worse, and the gradual decline of all those institutions, social, moral, and political which have been built up by the labors of so many centuries.

What is America doing toward the fulfillment of her obligations to the rising generations? The government statistics, recently published, indicate, to confine the inquiry to a single phase of the problem, that there are engaged in gainful occupations in the United States today more than one millions children between ten and fifteen years of age, geared up in their most tender and impressionable years like so many cogs in the machinery of production, their childhood and youth blighted by premature toil, robbed of an education, stunted in mind and body, while their "superparent, the state," reaps profit from their labor.

The Supreme Court has decided that the child labor law passed by Congress is unconstitutional, and while another measure is now under consideration which may pass the inspection of the Court, perhaps the best way in which to meet the situation is to pass the following proposed amendment to the Constitution:

"Congress shall have the power to regulate or forbid the labor of minors at any age or under any conditions deemed injurious to their health or morals. Such power will be concurrent, and not exclusive, and the exercise thereof by Congress shall not prevent any state from adopting other or further regulations, not inconsistent therewith."

In the present state of the case factory legislation is a state matter, but unfortunately many states have failed to enact any whole-some legislation, and in others the laws are either inadequate or have been poorly enforced. Moreover those Commonwealths which have taken the most advanced ground against child labor are subjected to unfair competition because other communities permit the employment of children in industry upon the lowest scale of wages.

There seems, then, no way in which this vital question can be dealt with in any adequate way except through an act of Congress, which can only be secured under the proposed amendment, for which all humane men and women and good citizens should now work.—Lexington Leader.

FARMERS' VIEW OF THE RAILROAD STRIKE.

In estimating public opinion on the strike, David Friday, President of the Michigan Agricultural College, has taken pains to estimate the farmers' interest. He says that the persons engaged in rendering the service of railroad transportation are less than 4½ per cent. of our total working population, and they received in 1921, as wages, almost 7 per cent. of the nation's purchasing power—that is, of the nation's total agricultural, mining and manufacturing product. While the railroad workers constituted less than 4½ per cent. of the population, the farmers, he estimated, made up somewhat over 26 per cent., but received less than 20 per cent. of the nation's product and purchasing power.

He puts the situation briefly, as follows: There were six times as many workers in agriculture as in railway transportation, and yet the received only three times as much of the nation's production as did the railway workers.

When labor leaders made their first move after the war towards achieving control of the political situation, they made a strong bid to have the farmers included in their organization, but with only moderate success, and since that time the farmers have been more and more aware that their interests did not lie with those of labor. Dr. Friday concludes, from his analysis, that the farmer is opposed and will continue to be opposed to any attempt on the part of railway labor to resist the natural working of the economic law towards lower compensation.—Bache Review.

GRAFTING CARNIVALS DOOMED

It is encouraging to note that the Billboard, the most widely read show magazine published in America, is waging a war on the grafting carnival outfits which travel over the country and offer nothing to the public but a chance to lose some of their cash in very questionable games of various sorts.

Maysville has been sorely afflicted with just the sort of carnival outfits which shall be the subject of the Billboard's campaign of publicity. That magazine says: "The entire structure of outdoor show business must be rebuilt." "The 'nuisance' shows should suffer—suffer for their own sins. Specific mention will do it. Identification is the cure."

The Billboard has been enabled to clean-up several phases of crooked show business in America by their publicity campaigns and we feel certain that they shall be successful in this, a most commendable movement. The great magazine will find the better journals all over the nation standing with them in an effort to bring a stop to the graft which appears to have gone on unhindered for the past several years in all sections.

The old-time carnival company, offering the public real shows, filled a place in the entertainment of the public but there is no room for the fakirs of this day and age and we venture the prediction that their days are numbered.

UNCLE TED'S BED-TIME STORIES.

"I don't know much about it," said Jack "but I just bet Freddie's mother is all wrong."

"Wrong about what?" asked Uncle Ted, who put down his evening paper to join in the conversation.

"Well," said Ruth, "Freddie told me that although his father was a Democrat his mother voted the Republican ticket last election but she read some place that the Republicans have not been treating the ex-soldiers fairly and after talking to another lady who agreed with the story she is thinking of joining the Democratic party."

"Maybe you can show her where the story and the other lady are all wrong," suggested Uncle Ted. "Because there isn't one bit of truth in any statement that the present administration or Republican states have treated the ex-service men unfairly. I have already told you about what fine work has been done at Washington in completing the many new hospitals throughout the country and enlarging others so as to make everything as comfortable as possible for every man wounded during the war. There is that to begin with."

"Then the facts show that the Democrats are the ones who have been against assisting the ex-soldier. It might interest those who are trying to discredit the aid given the ex-service men by Republican states to know that a total of $358,000,000 in cash has been paid the ex-soldiers by Republican states through Republican legislatures! In addition to this large figure the New York legislature voted to give their men a bonus of $45,000,000 but the high courts of the States ruled it unconstitutional. California, another Republican state has voted $10,000,000 in bonds which will be issued for ex-service men and their dependents to provide for education, training in various vocations and for cash aid in buying homes and farms."

"Haven't any Democratic states done anything for the soldiers?" asked Jack. "Jack," answered Uncle Ted, "you have heard of the 'Solid South,' that part of the country made up of states where the Democrats are in absolute control. In those states little or nothing has been done for the ex-service men. Neither did the Democrats do anything for the ex-soldiers when they were in control of the Congress at Washington. If you want further proof of the disregard for the ex-soldier by the Democratic party you do not have to stop with the late war. It was the same with the Civil war and Spanish-American war veterans. The men who fought for their country have always had to look to the Republican party to give them the aid necessary to put them on their feet."

"Have Republican states done anything besides voting a bonus?" asked Ruth.

"Yes indeed, Ruth," replied Uncle Ted. "A great deal has been done throughout the areas of the United States where Republican legislatures are in control. In the states of Connecticut, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, North Dakota and Wyoming, the legislatures have passed laws exempting ex-service men from all state and local taxation. Only two Democratic states did this and you can see what a great saving this would mean to the men. Not one Democratic state has seen fit to pass laws so that the ex-service men might be shown preference in all civil service employment yet such laws have been passed in seventeen Republican states."

"If an ex-service man wants to buy a home in Arizona, California, Idaho, Oregon or South Dakota and he hasn't the money, the state will give him financial aid but no such aid can be had by the ex-service man in any Democratic state. While the federal government through the present administration is furnishing the finest hospitals possible, nineteen Republican states have passed laws so that ex-service men may be admitted free to the state hospitals for free treatment. Only three Democratic states have made such free treatment possible."

"Many times the ex-soldier could get his fee on the round if he could have the loan of sufficient money. If he lives in a Democratic state he is 'out of luck' as we used to say in the army. But he can obtain such loans in the Republican states of Oregon, South Dakota and Washington."

"The Republican states of Massachusetts, Nebraska, Nevada and Washington have made laws providing for the rendering of assistance to ex-soldiers out of work, so that they may find adequate employment. Not one Democratic state has made such a provision.

"And so it is on down the line, kiddies. Those men at Washington, in the Senate and the House, who are always talking the loudest about the love of their party for the ex-service man come from Democratic states where very little has been done to give him relief. In other words, the story Freddie's mother read is just another part of the loud talking being indulged in by Democrats to try to wile the attention of the citizens of the country away from the splendid work being done by Republican states for the ex-soldier. It is the old case of loud talking and little doing. The Republicans are plugging along both at Washington and in every state controlled by them to do everything possible for the ex-service man and at the same time leave the Federal and state treasuries in a sound condition. The Republican party is too busy working to do any shouting, but the results are what the people want and the results will tell in the future."

"I think I can make Freddie's mother change her mind now," said Ruth. "I'm sure you can," answered Uncle Ted, "and if you can't you let me know. Now run along to bed, both of you."

"A FINE EXAMPLE OF CONSTRUCTIVE BUSINESS COURAGE"

Our readers will no doubt be interested and surprised, as we were, to learn that a leading eastern financial institution holds up the activities of "one of the humblest and least picturesque industries of this country" as "a fine example of constructive business courage and vision too valuable and too inspiring to be passed without emphasis and analyses."

The Corn Exchange National Bank, of Philadelphia, with resources of $60,000,000 points out in a recent issue of its Bulletin to patrons, and the public that "at the very day and hour of this writing a site for the location of a plant dedicated to the purposes of lifting the practices of the laundry industry to a higher plane is being selected."

"Nominally it is for the selfish benefit of the Laundry Industry as a whole—actually it will operate to protect the public which patronizes laundries from practices which are unsound, uneconomical and unacceptable."

It appears that the members of the Laundryowners National Association are building The American Institute of Laundering, in the city of Joliet, Ill., making "an investment of half a million dollars in scientific research to improve laundry service, to standardize throughout the entire industry those methods and practices and materials which are demonstrated to be soundest and best."

"The fact that it is being tackled at all, in these days when business is hard pushed to keep its wheels turning is the significant thing."

It appears that this same Association has for several years had a Chair in Chemical Research at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburgh, Pa.

The public laundry conserves the public health by helping people to keep clean and by taking a man-size job off the shoulders of women. It is therefore encouraging to know the steps that are being taken by far-sighted laundryowners to make their industry a better service to the public and to the American home.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeannie Price

New York. — Coney Island felt like the exhibitor of the giraffe, the other day. You remember the old story of the man with fifteen children who inquired how much it would cost to take them all in to see the circus animal. The ticket seller surveyed the mob in amazement, and then said, "Com on in free, and let the giraffe look at you!" Well, a delegation of Bishops in knee breeches making the rounds of Coney Island was as curious and intriguing a sight to the barkers and crowds of Coney as the "shoot the chutes" and "roly poly" were to the Bishops. The Most Reverend Edward Hutson of the Island of Antigua, Archbishop of the West Indies, adjourned the synod of the hierarchy of the Province of the West Indies which is holding a six day's session here, and he and the Bishops made the excursion to Coney. They made a complete round of amusements, ate "hot dogs" and threw baseballs at the dummy figures, all in their knee breeches with leggings, clerical coats with black silk aprons, and low round felt hats with three tassels dangling from three separate corners.

Wooden shoes! One never thinks of their being worn any more, certainly not on Manhattan Island. But there is an excellent market here for them, according to the mistress of a French Shop. The tops are of leather, to be sure, but the soles are thick and heavy carved out of chunks of wood by the jack knives of peasants somewhere in France. "They are worn in kitchens, that's all I know," the uncommunicative Frenchwoman declared.

It was a joy to see Wilton Lackaye in "The Monster," not only because he gives an interpretation of an almost incredible character in this thriller of thrillers, but because it was so delightfully reminiscent of his portrayal of Svengali, in his old success, "Trilby." He is the same suave mystic except that he threatens to cut with the surgeon's knife and electric current this time, rather than pierce with his eyes, as he then did. McKay Morris, on one of our best actors of the "naturalistic" school, is also in the cast. It seems a long way from his part in "Main Street" last year but as always, he gives a finished performance. I wondered just what would have happened if a match had been struck in the audience during the performance, so tensely was every one in witnessing the events on the stage. Fortunately,

New York photographers are about to rise en masse and bless the new law requiring every motorist to have his photograph made a part of his driver's license. "We always knew that men delighted in portraits of themselves," a photographer told me, "and now we at last can reap the benefits of that vanity. The average man refused ever to have his picture taken. That was just shyness, a pretense of indifference to a showing of vanity. Now the motorist doesn't do it voluntarily; the law makes him; that's a good enough alibi for anyone. And when he gets out of the door without falling for the temptation of having a dozen or so finished than he could refuse to be seen in his brand new motor car."

It doesn't look as if this coming season would be a dull one. The mood of the people toward prosperity is reflected with considerable accuracy in the expenditures of our merchants. They are too wary to go in heavily for European buying in the prospects of sales are dim. And when the Olympic arrived in port the other day, she carried 4,000 trunks, most of them belonging to buyers, and some of them pretty nearly as big as a beach bungalow.

Why must thrilling moments be so often spoiled? I was in a broker's office the other day between two-thirty and three o'clock and I never had every tick of the clock seem so portentous. Four telephones were in the small private office where I sat and the broker was dropping one receiver to pick up another with a moment's pause. "It's nineteen minutes to three," he would say, "I'll wait three minutes for your order." "Two forty eight," into another phone. "What about cancelling that 'sell at 32 1/8'?" Orders to buy and sell, queries to customers, oh! everything that made seconds seem like thousands of dollars! I just glowed in the importance of it. Then he jerked a phone, "Get Charlie!" he told the private wire operator. "Hello, Charlie!" — it was now two-fifty-one, with nine minutes before the market's close — "Say, that friend of mine got back this morning and he wants two cases of that mineral water." The whole rush and tremendousness of the minutes had been interrupted to order — mineral water. They didn't seem nearly so important, any more.

FIFTY-TWO CHEATING GAS PUMPS FOUND TO DATE.

Louisville. — Activities in the gasoline war, started by Louisville Automobile Club against proprietors of filling stations where gasoline is alleged to be short measured, resulted in the issuance of six more warrants, bringing the number of warrants issued to fifty-two. An average shortage of 66 cubic inches to five gallons of gasoline was found at the stations where pumps were incorrect.

TO ASYLUM AFTER REPEATED TERMS IN SCOTT JAIL.

Georgetown. — Frank Johnson, Negro, was tried for lunacy and adjudged insane. He was sent to the Eastern Kentucky state hospital at Lexington. The Negro has served a number of successive terms in the jail, committing the same crime as soon as freed. Each time he was tried on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

HIGHER WAGES AT PLANT WHERE STRIKE WAGED.

Newport. — Wages of laborers employed by the Andrews Steel Company were increased 20 per cent. effective September 1. Other departments of the steel plant and the Newport Rolling Mill will be adjusted accordingly, except the tonnage men, whose wages are regulated by a sliding scale based on the selling price of steel.

The State National Bank, in furtherance of a thrift campaign, will likely install a miniature bank in the Mayaville High School this season. The same plan of saving by school children will also be introduced in the county schools and the Aberdeen school.

On District Prosecutor's Motion
Indictments Against Dog Owners
Are Filed Away—Fines
To Be Returned.

District Prosecutor B. S. Grannis in Circuit Court Monday morning made a very sweeping motion which releases the people of Mason county from paying hundreds of dollars in fines. The motion was that all of the nearly 800 indictments returned against dog owners for having failed to take out license at the last term of court, be filed away unconditionally.

Mr. Grannis also requested that the three persons who had already paid their fines be returned their money and every one be treated exactly alike in the dog license deal.

There has been much discussion of this question throughout the county and the announcement of the arrest of prosecution on the "true bills" will be good news to all parts of the county.

Splendid Exhibition of Baseball

The Cardinals made it two out of three from the Lexington Studebakers in their Labor Day contest in the best game of the series with Bacon, for the visitors, and Miner, for the locals, engaging in a hurler's duel with honors about even, each giving five hits apiece, with Bacon the steadier of the two with the exception of the fourth when a base on balls, two hits and a passed ball gave the Cards two runs and the game. Harding had rolled to Reistenberg in the fourth for the first out when Class drew four balls. Slayback followed with a single over short. Monk hit one of Bacon's wide ones get past him and both advanced a base. Kresser shoved them both home on a long single to center. Burman then hit to Bacon for a double play.

Several times the visitors threatened to score but the necessary hit to advance the runner beyond second was lacking and fast fielding by the inner defense checked rallies in both the seventh and ninth. After two were down in the seventh Reistenberg and Considine singled but Bacon forced Considine at Second, Burman, to Slayback. Again in the ninth after Meadows had fanned Monk hit safe to left. On Reistenberg's rolled Miner threw wild to second to force Monk. Kresser took Considine's fly and doubled Monk at second.

Due to heavy showers that fell just before the game in the vicinity of the ball grounds the game was delayed for an hour in starting and many a supper was delayed. The game was not over until a few minutes before six o'clock.

Notes.
No doubt the best arbitrated games of the season were the three Card-Stude battles in which umpire Wells, of Louisville, officiated and there was hardly an objection by either player or fan. From the very start he gave his men to believe that he was just and that he was going to be boss of "this here contest" and was nothing else. It would not be a bad idea to call the other umpires of the league together and have this man lecture to them on how it is done.

The present standing of the B. G. L. is a novelty with but three different averages among the six clubs. In other words three teams, Maysville Cynthia and Paris all occupy first place with .560. Lexington and Mt. Sterling are second with a .500 average. Winchester has undisputed claim to the cellar position with .320.

Bacon made a great attempt to compensate for his Saturday defeat and hurled a great game, however, the breaks were slightly against him.

Bob Spade erstwhile umpire in this circuit and at one time leading pitcher of the National League when with Cincinnati Reds has joined the Studebakers and appeared in uniform Monday.

ALWAYS TIRED NO AMBITION

Nervous and Dizzy, Everything Seemed to Worry Me. How I Got Well

Larwill, Indiana. — "My back was so bad I could not do my washing. I was always tired out and had no ambition, was nervous and dizzy and everything seemed to worry me in my right side. I felt badly about four years and could not do my work as I should have been done. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised so much and it did so many people good that I began to take it myself. I am feeling fine now and everyone tells me they never saw me looking so well. I live on a farm, do all my work, and have three little girls to take care of. I am recommending this medicine to my friends and know it will help them if they use it like I do." — Mrs. HERBERT LONG, R. R. 3, Box 7, Larwill, Indiana.

Many women keep about their work when it is a great effort. They are always tired out and have no ambition. When you are in this condition give it prompt attention.

Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it is especially adapted to correct such troubles, as it did for Mrs. Long.
